PROHIBITION NATION WITHIN SEVEN YEARS, IS HER BELIEF

Head of the W. C. T. U. Gives the Reasons for Her Prediction
—Nine States Have Already Adopted It and Are Enjoying Increased Prosperity Because of It, Mrs. Stevens Says

BY MRS. LILLIAN M. N. STEVENS, (President of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in the New York World.)

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has always believed in national prohibition. On the evening of Sept. 10, before the closing of the Maine campaign of 1911, the greatest prohibition battle the world has ever known, reviewing in my mind the great events of the campaign, especially the appeals for Maine to hold its prohibitory law, which came from every section of our land and from every land, I saw clearly that prohibition is a question of nation-wide import. And that evening, in the name of the world's and national W. C. T. U. I made a proclamation that within a decade prohibition shall be placed in the Constitution of the United States and to this end called to active cooperation all temperance, prohibition, religious and philanthropic bodies, all patriotic, fraternal, civic associations and all Americans who love their country. The Portland Evening Express of recent date says editorially:

Two years ago, at the close of the Maine resubmission campaign, when Mrs. Stevens declared that the next step which must be taken by the opponents of the liquor traffic must be the movement for an amendment to the federal constitution, prohibiting the manufacture, sale, importation and exportation of all alcoholic beverages, her most ardent friends thought she had gone far beyond the limit of possibility and was demanding the impossible. It is perfectly marvellous what a change has come over the sentiment of the country in relation to this question in the two years since Mrs. Stevens made her proclamation.

All of the temperance organizations, many philanthropic bodies and numerous religious organizations have endorsed the movement. To illustrate the sentiment of the churches on this subject, on Oct. 23, 1913, at the triennial meeting of the National Council of Congregational churches in the United States, held in Kansas City, Mo., the council went on record by a vote of 517 to 14 in favor of the proposed constitutional prohibitory amendment to the federal constitution; and this was done notwithstanding the strenuous efforts of Governor Baldwin of Connecticut and a few other members of the council to defeat it.

Reduced Crime and Poverty. The aim of today's civilization is to prohibit or destroy anything that is dangerous to the life of the people. The hookworm, the mosquito, the fly, infected food, unsanitary houses are included in this list, yet the use of alcoholic drink causes far greater loss of life than all these combined, even if we should include the losses by war, famine, hurricane and flood.

Every prohibition state or locality can furnish proof that prohibition of the liquor traffic reduces crime and poverty. Macon, Ga., lost all liquor licenses when the Georgia prohibitory law went into effect January 1, 1908. January 1, 1909, Macon had paid $47,000 debt and had $600 in the treasury. Before Maine adopted state-wide prohibition it was one of the poorest states in the Union. The legalized liquor trade abounded. In Neal Dow's home city of Portland there were seven distilleries and two breweries. Today, with no breweries and no distilleries and no legalized liquor selling, Maine is one of the most prosperous states. The tourists who go to Maine leave in the state each year $20,000,000—desirable visitors who seem not to object to the saloonless towns and barless hotels.

In Kansas and Georgia. Last year was a hard year for Kansas. Heat and drought destroyed about two-thirds of the corn crop, causing an immense financial loss; yet the governor of the state declares that Kansas needs no pity, for the state is well prepared for such a situation, having more than $200,000,000 on deposit in state and national banks. Kansas people decided 30 years ago that it was better to deposit money in the bank than to deposit it in the tills of the liquor makers and liquor sellers.

Congressman Webb of North Carolina says that about 12 years ago he looked out on a section of his state and saw 35 government distilleries, and saloons were scattered throughout the length and breadth of the district. There were only two or three factories, giving employment to two or three hundred people. There were few churches and few school houses. Two years ago, about 10 years after the people had adopted state-wide prohibition, he found in this same section magnificent churches, fine school houses and, instead of the 35 distilleries there were 43 of the largest cotton factories of the United States.

If prohibition is good for the states I have referred to and for other prohibition states I might mention, it certainly will be good for New York and for all states and for the United States.

A remarkable proof of the advancing sentiment in favor of prohibition was given last February by the passage of the bill furnishing interstate protection to prohibition territory, and this bill was passed by an overwhelming majority and over the veto of President Taft.

Ally of White Slavery. The close connection between the liquor traffic and the white slave traffic is causing an arrest of thought regarding the evil of the liquor traffic in the hearts of many who heretofore have taken little interest in the liquor question. Dean Sumner, chairman of the Chicago vice commission, declares that "the saloon is the greatest supporter that exists of the social evil and the house of prostitution." Jane Addams declares that "strong drink is the indispensable vehicle of the business transaction by the white slave traders," and says that without its use this trade could not long continue.

Our belief that national constitutional prohibition will be the law of our land within a decade is based on such facts as I have above stated. Nine sovereign states—containing one-sixth of the population of the country—now have statewide prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. Upward of 30,000,000 people of other states live in localities which have outlawed liquor-selling, and seven-tenths of the territory of the country is free from the licensed saloon.

Not very long ago the lottery system seemed securely entrenched in our land. It was wrong; it had to go. Not very long ago African slavery existed in our nation. Many said it never could be uprooted; but it was wrong and it had to go; and the entire nation rejoices that it did go, and the South is more prosperous than it could be with slavery. Even so, some glad day will New York and other states in which today is entrenched the liquor system rejoice that it has been abolished.

Science, philanthropy, reform, religion and the business world are testifying against the liquor traffic. In the light of all this we can see prohibition sentiment looming up all the way from Mount Kineo in the East to Mount Shasta in the West, from the pine forests of the North to the palm-trees of the South. We verily believe that the amendment for national constitutional prohibition introduced in the United States Congress Dec. 4, 1911 by Congressman Richmond Pearson Hobson of Alabama, and reintroduced by him Oct. 28, 1913, is destined to prevail, and that by 1920 the United States flag will float over a nation redeemed from the home-destroying, heart-breaking curse of the legalized liquor traffic.

GIRLS! GIRLS! TRY IT. BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Make it thick, glossy, wavy, luxuriant and remove dandruff—Real surprise for you.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes, but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drugist or toilet counter, and just try it—advertisement.
